WASHINGTON PARK'S 125TH ANNIVERSARY

DID YOU KNOW?

- The City of Milwaukee acquired the land for the park in 1891.
- It was originally known as West Park.
- The initial design for the park was done by Frederick Law Olmsted, the nationally renowned landscape architect, who among his accomplishments, designed Central Park in New York City. (He was also retained to design Lake and Riverside Parks in Milwaukee).
- In 1900, it was renamed Washington Park and underwent considerable modifications from Olmsted's original design. The result was the development of Milwaukee's first zoo and the construction of athletic and sporting facilities.
- In 1937, it was turned over to the County as part of the consolidation of parks.
- In 1938, Music Under the Stars programming commenced in the new Emil Blatz Temple of Music - the famous bandshell!
